EATING IN BANGKOK

INTRODUCTION

Where to eat is just as exciting as what to eat. Bangkok offers an incredible selection of eating places in all price ranges. From kerbside food stall selling simple but good food, to smart restaurants, where is something to please everyone.

In addition to Thai food, other cuisines, East and West, are readily available. Independent restaurants offer between them virtually every culinary style you can think of, while top hotels pride themselves on the high standards of their speciality restaurants where superb menus are matched by impeccable service.

FOOD STREETS

Bang Lamphu (บางลำพู) Shoestring travellers flock to Bang Lamphu, especially the area around Khaosan Road. Most eating places in this area cater for budget-conscious diners. Many guesthouses on Khaosan Road have open-air cafes serving standard Thai and Chinese dishes. Other decent possibilities include Indian, Jewish, and Muslim restaurants.

Yaowarat (เยาวราช) Bangkok's Chinatown houses some of the best and most expensive Chinese restaurants in the city, along with many of the best and cheapest food stalls, especially at night. Large restaurants line the bustling Yaowarat Road, but venturing into sois, or lanes, will lead you to less impressive yet equally enjoyable establishments. The restaurants mostly specialise in southern Chinese cooking, with noodles, seafood and, at lunchtime, dim sum dumplings dominating the menus.

Phahurat (พญารุတ်) Taking a short walk from Yaowarat's Chinatown to Phahurat's little India is like taking a transcendental journey between two different worlds. Inhabited by Thai people of Indian origin, the confined alleyways around the Phahurat area accommodate a number of authentic Indian restaurants, particularly those offering North Indian cuisine. Alternatively, other subcontinental foods such as Punjabi and Pakistani are also plentifully available.

Silom Road (ถนนสีลม) Several food streets are linked to this road in Bangkok's busiest area. Seafood stalls sprout along the section near Sala Daeng Intersection after sunset until late at night. The nearby Convent Road offers everything from Indonesian to an Irish tavern. Opposite, a crush of Japanese restaurants makes Soi Thaniya into a lively walkway for Japanese visitors and sushi lovers of all nationalities.

Thai food is available in palace style and street style, side by side. The best selection of the former can be found in Soi Phiphat. Find the Thai version of fast food at most shopping complexes and Soi Lalai Sap's Lunch Market.

Siam Square (สยามสแควร์) This shopping area is crammed with medium to high-priced eateries as well as American fast-food outlets. Whether you crave Thai, European, Chinese or Japanese foods, there is a place for you somewhere in this fashionable area. Traditional Thai restaurants are flanked by gaudy fast-food franchises and Japanese suki parlours. Soi 1 has conventional Chinese restaurants.

Sukhumvit Road (สุขุมวิท) There is no shortage of eating places on Sukhumvit. Some people say that from any spot along the road you are within 100 metres of at least one restaurant. And the food could not be more cosmopolitan.

At its western end, around Soi Nana, an enclave of Pakistani and Middle Eastern restaurants fills the sois with the aroma of spices, earning this area the name "Little Arabia". Further up the road Indian cuisine takes over, with restaurants offering both northern and southern Indian specialities.

European and American cooking balance the equation, with Italian, French, British, German, and Mexican restaurants lining the road and presenting a variety of options in terms of menus, atmosphere, and prices. Sukhumvit 55, also known as Soi Thong Lo, and are also full of restaurants of every kind.

Soi Lang Suan (ซอยหลังสวน) Like Sukhumvit Road, Soi Lang Suan offers a diverse mix of Thai, Asian, and European influences. Fashionable restaurants present interesting eating possibilities at medium to high prices. Also home to some of the most popular jazz pubs in the city, the street's flashy atmosphere attracts the money crowd after sundown.

Thai food, both authentic and nouvelle dishes, can be easily found at small, sparingly decorated restaurants or lavishly ornate ones, along the pavements, and in the markets.

Thai Food

EATING AND ORDERING THAI FOOD

Thai food is eaten with a fork and spoon. Even single-dish meals such as fried rice with pork, or steamed rice topped with roasted duck, are served in bite-sized slices or chunks obviating need for a knife.

Ideally, eating Thai food is a communal affair involving two or more people, principally because the greater the number of diners the greater the number of dishes ordered. Generally speaking, two diners order three dishes in addition to their own individual plates of steamed rice, three diners four dishes, and so on. Diners choose whatever they require from shared dishes and generally add it to their own rice. Soups are enjoyed concurrently with other dishes, not independently. Spicy dishes are "balanced" by mild dishes to avoid discomfort.

The ideal Thai meal is a harmonious blend of the spicy, the subtle, the sweet and sour, and is meant to be equally satisfying to eye, nose and palate. A typical meal might include a clear soup, a steamed dish, a fried dish, a hot salad and a variety of sauces into which food is dipped. This would be followed by sweet desserts and/or fresh fruits.

Titbits

These can be hors d'oeuvres, accompaniments, side dishes, snacks.

Khanom Pang Na Mu (ขนมปังหน้าหมู) Savoury minced pork topped on fried bread

Khao Tang Na Tang (ข้าวตังหน้าตัง) Crispy rice with savoury minced pork sauce

Mi Krop (หมี่กรอบ) Crispy thin noodles (vermicelli) with bits of shrimp, egg and sweet and sour sauce

Mu Satay (หมูสับเต๊ะ) Grilled sliced pork served with satay sauce and cucumber dressing.

Popia Thot (ปอเปี๊ยะทอด) Fried egg roll containing bean sprouts, pork, crabmeat and shredded jelly

Salads

Harmony of tastes and herbal flavours are essential. Major tastes are sour, sweet and salty. Spiciness comes in different degrees according to meat textures and occasions.

Som Tam (ส้มตำ) Raw papaya salad in typical Thai style usually served with barbecued chicken and sticky rice

Yam Nuea (ยำเนื้อ) Beef salad in typical Thai style

Yam Thua Phlu (ยำถั่วพูลู) Winged bean salad

Yam Wun Sen (ยำวุ้นเส้น) Spicy shredded jelly salad with shrimp and minced pork in typical Thai style

General

A sweet and sour dish, a fluffy omelette, a stir-fried dish help make a meal more complete.

Kai Phat Met Mamuang (ไก่ผัดเม็ดมะม่วงหิมพานต์) Fried chicken with cashew nuts

Kai Thot (ไก่ทอด) Fried chicken

Khai Chiao (ไข่เจียว) Plain omelette

Khai Chiao Mu Sap (ไข่เจียวหมูสับ) Omelette filled with minced pork

Khai Yat Sai (ไข่ยัดไส้) Stuffed omelette; omelette filled with meat, onions and sugar peas

Nuea Phat Nam Man Hoi (เนื้อผัดน้ำมันหอย) Fried beef with oyster flavored sauce and onion

Phat Phak (ผัดผัก) Stir-fried vegetables

Phat Prio Wan (ผัดเปรี้ยวหวาน) Fried vegetables and meat in sweet and sour gravy

Pla Thot (ปลาทอด) Fried fish

Thot Man Kung (ทอดมันกุ้ง) Fried curried shrimp cakes

Thot Man Pla (ทอดมันปลา) Fried curried fish cakes

Soups

A good meal for an average person may consist simply of a soup and rice. Traditional Thai soups are unique because they embody more flavours and textures than can be found in other types of food.

Kaeng Chuet (แกงจืด) A mild flavored soup made of vegetables and meat

Kaeng Liang (แกงเลียง) A typical Thai style soup of vegetables.

Kaeng Som (แกงส้ม) A hot and sour soup made of vegetables and fish or shrimp

Nuea Tun (เนื้อตุ๋น) Beef soup

Tom Kha Khai (ต้มข่าไก่) Chicken with galangal in coconut soup.

Tom Khlong (ต้มโคล้ง) Fish boiled with tamarind and onions

Tom Yam (ต้มยำ) A chilli hot and sour soup made with either shrimp, fish or chicken

Curries

Most non-Thai curries consist of powdered or ground dried spices, whereas the major ingredients of Thai curries are fresh herbs. A simple Thai curry paste consists of dried chillies, shallots and shrimp paste. More complex curries include garlic, galangal, coriander roots, lemongrass, kaffir lime peel and pepper.

Ho Mok Pla (ห่อหมกปลา) Steamed curried fish wrapped in banana leaves

Kaeng Kai (แกงไก่) Chicken spiced curry

Kaeng Kari (แกงกะหรี่) A mild flavoured Indian type curry made with potatoes and chicken

Kaeng Khiao Wan (แกงเขียวหวาน) Green curry with beef or chicken

Kaeng Matsaman (แกงมัสมั่น) A rich curry with peanuts made with either chicken or beef

Kaeng Nua (แกงเนื้อ) Spiced curry with beef

Phanaeng Kai (พะเนียงไก่) Chicken dry curry

Dips

Dips entail some complexity. They can be the major dish of a meal with accompaniments of vegetables and some meats. When spicy dips are made thinly, they can be used as salad dressings.

Nam Phrik Kapi (น้ำพริกกะปิ) popular and simple dip made from chillies, garlic, dried shrimps, lime juice, fish sauce, sugar and shrimp paste.

Nam Phrik Ong (น้ำพริกอ่อง) Northern style dip made from pork and tomatoes.
